

New Middletown Amtrak station site will be at Ann Street and Route 230

By Barbara Miller | bmiller@pennlive.com

On December 06, 2010 at 11:42 AM, updated December 06, 2010 at 1:41 PM

The new Middletown Amtrak station site will be at the location next to the A.P. Green warehouse at Ann Street and Route 230, Pennsylvania Department of Transportation officials announced this morning.

Two sites were in contention, according to an engineering study, with the other being on Route 230 across from Harrisburg International Airport.

It is expected to take two to three years to have the new station completed. Parking plans are still in development, officials said.

PennDOT said the Ann Street site was chosen after a feasibility study that included input from various stakeholders, public input and environmental and engineering analysis.

The existing station on Mill Street needs upgrades to make it compliant with the American With Disabilities Act. An engineering study concluded upgrading the existing station would be too costly because the station is on a curve and would have to be moved, requiring a new bridge over the Swatara Creek.

source: www.pennlive.com